

Washington Post Appoints 2 Deputy Managing Editors

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)

The appointment of two new deputy managing editors of The Washington Post was announced tonight by J. R. Wiggins, editor, and Alfred Friendly, managing editor.

The appointees are Benjamin Bradlee, head of the Washington bureau of Newsweek magazine for the last four years, and Ben W. Gilbert, day managing editor since February, 1964.

Mr. Bradlee's principal responsibilities will be in the areas of national and foreign news coverage. He will begin his new duties on Sept. 1.

Mr. Gilbert's principal responsibilities will be for news coverage in the Washington region and for general administration of the news department.